Wastewater treatment plant operational

The Western Regional facility has the capacity to treat up to 20 million gallons a day of wastewater.

The Western Regional Water Reclamation Facility, built by SD1, began operations in spring 2012. Located in western Boone County, the facility will improve sewer function across the region by relieving demand on the Dry Creek Wastewater Treatment Plant, which serves all three Northern Kentucky counties. Western Regional treats an estimated average of 6 million gallons a day (MGD) of wastewater, with the capacity to treat up to 20 MGD as demand increases.

“Our customers pay their sanitary sewer fees with the expectation that SD1 will provide them with exceptional service,” said David Rager, SD1’s Executive Director. “This new treatment plant is key to improving our service and supporting Northern Kentucky’s businesses and growing population.”

The Western Regional Facility and the Western Regional Conveyance Tunnel are projected to significantly alleviate stress on Northern Kentucky’s existing wastewater facilities and reduce sanitary sewer overflows by about 59.7 million gallons, based on average rainfall.

By maximizing the use of gravity sewer mains leading to the plant, fourteen older pump stations will also be eliminated, increasing efficiency and reducing SD1’s facility maintenance costs.

“The Western Regional Facility and Tunnel together represent the largest infrastructure investment SD1 has ever made,” said Rager. “They are vital to the continued growth of Northern Kentucky because businesses cannot build or thrive in our region without wastewater infrastructure. Business development means job growth for our community.”

The Western Regional facility incorporates state-of-the-art wastewater treatment and odor control technologies. Instead of using chlorine, water released from Western Regional is disinfected using ultraviolet light. Odor is controlled using an innovative biofilter.

To help finance the construction of Western Regional, SD1 received a low-interest loan of $70 million through the Kentucky Infrastructure Authority’s Federally Assisted Wastewater Revolving Loan, saving SD1 and its ratepayers approximately $54.2 million in interest costs when compared to traditional bonds.

“SD1 is committed to meeting the needs of our customers in the most cost-effective methods possible,” said Rager. “We are confident that this investment in Northern Kentucky will bring many returns in the future for our region.”

For more information on the Western Regional facility, please visit www.sd1.org/westernregional.

Adopt healthy household habits to keep water clean

By adopting healthy household habits, you can help protect our region’s water resources.

Vehicle and garage

- Wash your car on a lawn or unpaved surface or visit a commercial wash to reduce the amount of dirty, soapy water flowing into the storm drains.
- Check your car, boat, motorcycle, machinery and other equipment for leaks and spills often, and make repairs immediately. Clean up any spilled materials with an absorbent material like kitty litter or sand, and don’t rinse spills into a nearby storm drain.
- If you change your vehicle’s oil at home, recycle the used oil at participating service stations.

NEVER dump these chemicals down the storm drain or dispose of them in your trash.

Lawn and garden

- Use pesticides and fertilizers sparingly and in the recommended amounts. If they are applied too heavily, excess nutrients and chemicals are left in the soil and can be washed into local waterbodies.
- Install native grasses and plants that are adapted to the local environment and may not need supplemental nutrients.
- After working on your lawn, sweep up yard debris rather than hosing down the area.

Home repair

- Sweep up and properly dispose of construction debris like concrete and mortar.
- Clean paint brushes in a sink, not outdoors. When using oil-based paints, filter and reuse paint thinner.
- Properly dispose of excess paints through a household hazardous waste collection program, or donate unused paint to local organizations.

Pet care

Bacteria is a major pollutant of concern in Northern Kentucky. We cannot control the waste that comes from wildlife, but we can control the environmental impact of our pet waste. When walking your pet, remember to pick up the waste and dispose of it in a trash receptacle.

Joint American Cancer Society/St. Elizabeth Resource Center opens in Edgewood

The American Cancer Society's Cancer Resource Center opened at St. Elizabeth Edgewood in May. The center provides the latest in cancer information, services and programs for Northern Kentucky cancer patients and their families. The center is a partnership between the American Cancer Society and St. Elizabeth Healthcare.

"The Cancer Resource Center will be a vital link in the entire cancer experience, not only for those diagnosed, but also for their families and caregivers," says Lisa Meier, health initiatives representative for the American Cancer Society in Northern Kentucky. "Cancer Resource Centers are typically located within cancer treatment facilities, with the goal of furnishing their patrons with the most up-to-date information possible about their individual cancer and resources available to them."

The center is staffed by volunteers, who have been both recruited and trained by the American Cancer Society and St. Elizabeth Healthcare. Initial hours of operation are Wednesdays 9 am-1 pm, Thursdays 12-4 pm, and Fridays 9 am-1 pm.

"Though we wish no one should ever have to be confronted with cancer, we know that nearly 25,000 Kentucky residents will be diagnosed with the disease this year," said

Meier. "We want them and their loved ones to know that this incredible facility is available to them when they need it most."

For cancer information anytime day or night, please call toll free 1-800-227-2345, 859/301-5476 or visit www.cancer.org. To volunteer, visit www.stelizabeth.com/cancerresourcecenter or contact the Cancer Resource Center at 859/301-5476.

St. Elizabeth Holistic Health offers integrative therapies for cancer patients

St. Elizabeth Holistic Health Center now offers integrative therapies for oncology patients based on the model of care developed by the M.D. Anderson Cancer Center in Houston, Texas. These holistic oncology services include: acupuncture, acupressure, massage, reflexology, RN consultation, oncology patient skin care and makeup, stress management, cancer fitness classes, methods of meditation, tai chi/yoga, smoking cessation support group, four weeks to a new you, and energy work.

"The goal of the program is to assist patients in selecting integrative therapies that are most appropriate for patient needs," says Toni Schklar, Manager Holistic Health Center. "We want to be the trusted resource for physicians and patients to access evidence-based integrative therapies provided by professionals appropriately trained to safely deliver the services."

Through the nurse consultation program, patients can meet with a registered nurse who specializes in integrative therapies to determine which therapies are best suited to manage symptoms and promote optimal health. The nurse will also ensure that the therapies chosen are compatible with the oncology plan of care. The nurse can also coordinate treatments with the patient and his or her teams from holistic health and oncology.

At the initial oncology treatment, patients will receive gift certificates to attend "Methods of Meditation," a four-week series of meditation classes that help with relaxation, rest and symptom management. In addition to the classes (valued at $40), each participant receives a free relaxation CD. Upon completion of treatment, patients will receive another gift certificate for a 30-minute massage (valued at $45), along with their certificate of completion from treatment.

For more information, contact the St. Elizabeth Holistic Health Center at 859/301-5959.

Powerful new tool to fight cancer at St. Elizabeth Edgewood: TrueBeam Linear Accelerator is state of the art

Patients in Northern Kentucky now receive the latest and most powerful stereotactic radiotherapy right at St. Elizabeth Edgewood, thanks to the hospital's acquisition of medicine's most advanced linear accelerator, the Varian TrueBeam.

Nationally, there are only about 200 of the cutting-edge machines in use, including just one other in Kentucky, in Louisville. It's a huge asset to the local physician's cancer-fighting toolbox, since the TrueBeam offers unparalleled three-dimensional imaging and the ability to deliver accelerated doses of radiation with unmatched precision at previously unavailable dose rates.

"The CT imager on the linear accelerator itself allows us to detect sub-millimetric changes in tumor volume, and treat as we go," said St. Elizabeth Radiation Oncology Manager Mike Grindstaff. "Likewise, the speed at which we can reconstruct that image is lightning fast — about two times the operating speed of normal linear accelerators."

Another marked benefit of this form of treatment is the speed with which it delivers results. Because of the TrueBeam's power and precision, most treatments can be delivered in just a few minutes a day, with a standard course of therapy completed in a week's time.

But, even though patients aren't in treatment very long, the experience is still being made as pleasant as possible. A new, specially designed treatment room has been constructed at the Esther Marie Hatton Cancer Care Center at St. Elizabeth Edgewood, which offers a calming, star-filled night sky overhead and the individual's choice of music or other programming.

Direction 2030: Your voice. Your choice.

Direction 2030 is an 18-month planning effort focused on preparing a new comprehensive plan for Kenton County. The comprehensive plan is a guide that provides policies for growth and development in Kenton County and outlines goals, objectives, and implementation strategies aimed at making Kenton County an even greater place to live.

Public engagement is a key area of focus for this effort. Round One concluded in late 2011 with four public meetings focused on discussion of national trends and implications for Kenton County. Round Two included two round tables – one on the topic of Healthy Communities and a second on Economic Competitiveness. Round Two meetings provided an opportunity for the public to ask questions of a panel of experts and provide comments. A summary of the Healthy Communities Roundtable is provided below. Information on the second meeting was not available at the time of publication.

Healthy Communities Roundtable

Held on June 14 from 6-8 pm at the Ludlow school cafeteria, the meeting began with a presentation from the plan's market advisor, Michael Dinn of Dinn Focused Marketing, Inc. (DFM). Dinn spoke briefly about the current status of the housing market nationally and how Greater Cincinnati markets were not affected as harshly as other major U.S. markets. He explained that homes in Kenton County are valued roughly at the same level as they would have been in 2003 or 2004 — before the market increased sharply and then declined.

Panel Discussion. Panelists for the Healthy Communities forum included Brian Miller of the Home Builder's Association of Northern Kentucky, Dr. Lynne Sadler of the Northern Kentucky Health Department, Kathy Schwab of the Local Initiatives Support Corporation, and market analyst Michael Dinn. Amanda VanBenschoten of the Kentucky Enquirer moderated the discussion.

Mr. Miller began by providing a brief discussion of the changing market for housing in Kenton County. He described that at the height of the housing boom approximately 800 building permits were issued for single family detached residential units. By comparison, only 174 permits were issued last year for the same type of development. Moving forward, he anticipated the “new normal” for home construction numbers to range in the mid-500s each year. He also spoke about changing market desires — including the need for more rental housing. Miller stated that flexibility in regulations will be a key factor in dealing with the market forces in housing.

Schwab spoke about changing demographics and how both aging and younger populations desire a different product. She described how empty nesters want to return to urban areas. She described her experiences with people who want to walk and bike to amenities and how they are moving to areas with these features. Ms. Schwab finished by saying “planners should, where possible focus on reinvesting not only in the urban core, but also in its existing real estate and community assets.”

Dr. Saddler responded to the topic of changing demographics by stating that today's buyers do not just want what is in the home; they want a high quality of life in terms of their community. She suggested that communities and home builders need to figure out what buyers want to make communities more attractive from a quality-of-life standpoint. She pointed out the relatively new but critical connection between planning and health. Dr. Saddler said that while the built environment is not the only factor that affects the health of a community, it is a significant factor.

Dinn wrapped up the panel discussion by speaking about senior housing. He described how the local community may be lacking in the valuable “move-down” market choice that seniors often seek. He recommended that there be a mechanism to free up housing stock and create communities where there's an affordable attached housing choice for seniors. He also believed these new housing types might be attractive to younger buyers as well.

Questions for the Panel and Next Steps. VanBenschoten opened the floor to questions from the audience and several comments were made regarding the rigidity of zoning ordinances and the need to make regulations smarter and more flexible.

Panel discussion and the audience's questions and comments along with input from the first round of public meetings, small group meetings, discussions with task forces will all be used to craft new goals and objectives for the comprehensive plan. A public meeting will be held in late October to present a draft of the Goals and Objectives.

More information about Direction 2030 is available at direction2030.org.

Storm debris removal assistance continues

Residents of Kenton County who were affected by the March tornadoes may be eligible for financial assistance to aid clean-up efforts on their farms. "We already administer a farm dump clean-up program and we were able to quickly adapt the program to help our neighbors in the Piner area," said Marc Hult, Chairman of the Kenton County Conservation District. The Kenton County Conservation District was able to transition some of the farm dump funds to form a Farm Storm Debris Removal Program and began issuing checks in March. Landowners who have 10 acres or more in some type of agricultural or horticultural production can apply for reimbursement of 75% of the clean-up costs. There is a maximum reimbursement of $500. District Coordinator Mary Kathryn Dickerson started making personal visits to residents within a week of the storms to assess their needs and to assist them in filling out their applications. "It was very important to the District that we were able to provide help to our neighbors as soon as possible," said Gailen Bridges, a farmer and resident of Independence, who is also Vice Chair of the District. "The funds have been used for everything from clearing debris so fences could be repaired, to purchasing fuel for chainsaws and other clean-up equipment." Applications will be accepted through September 30, 2012. Reimbursements for approved applications will be made subject to available funding.

Heritage Land Conservation Fund Board Morning View project

Mist over the newly acquired land near Morning View, Kentucky.

Work continues on the land acquired near Morning View through the Kentucky Heritage Land Conservation Fund Board. Over the past year, efforts have concentrated on removing old farm dumps and other debris including that from tornado damage. In 2011, the Ky. Department for Environmental Protection, Division of Waste Management at the Florence Regional Office chose the site for their Commonwealth Cleanup Week project. During the week, employees of the regional and state office worked with volunteers to remove over 30 cubic yards of waste and 500 tires from the property. Rumpke Consolidated Companies, Inc. donated several dumpsters for the project. In June, the Conservation District cleaned up two additional dumps, resulting in the removal of over 330 cubic yards of waste material. Metal debris from both cleanups was taken to a scrap dealer for recycling. In cooperation with Kenton County Solid Waste Management and CSX Railroad, an open dump along the river was removed later in the year. The property sustained some damage from the March 2012 tornadoes, and the Conservation District wants to thank their neighbors and the many volunteers who helped remove debris from the property. The biological inventory and archaeological assessments will be started later this year, and are the next step in developing the resource management plan for the property. The Conservation District will be sharing those results when the work is completed. The property will be featured in a new book by noted Kentucky photographer Tom Barnes to be released by the Kentucky Heritage Land Conservation Fund Board later this year.

Conservation education

Conservation writing and art contest

Materials for the annual Conservation Writing and Art Contest will be released in September. This year's contest will focus on forestry. Schools submit their top three entries to the Conservation District, which then selects a winner from each school, and from those entries selects an overall county winner. The county winners' entries are sent on to area and state competition. Prizes are awarded at the local and state levels.

Conservation education project grants

Grant applications will be due January 25, 2013 for Kenton County Schools interested in developing a conservation education project. The Conservation District offers small grants to schools to help fund projects such as materials to enhance an outdoor learning area; developing trails and trail guidebooks; conservation-related library materials; water monitoring equipment; and soils testing equipment.

Envirothon competition

The Canon Envirothon is a hands-on environmental problem-solving competition for high school-aged students. Participating teams complete training and testing in five natural resource categories: soils and land use, aquatic ecology, forestry, wildlife, and a current environmental issue. Teams of five students are formed within a school. With the support of natural resource professionals, students are trained in the ways that real-life environmental problems are solved. The 2013 national competition will be held at Montana State University in Bozeman and the current environmental issue will be Sustainable Rangeland Management: Achieving a Balance Between Traditional Agricultural Uses with Non-Agricultural Uses on Montana Rangelands. Prizes, including the national prize of $25,000 in scholarships, are awarded at all levels of competition. The local Conservation District offers both financial and instructional assistance for school teams. School teams must be registered with their conservation district by January 31, 2013.

The two-hour hike is medium paced to allow time for you to explore some of the natural history of one of our most beautiful NKY parks. Bring H<sub>2</sub>O and sunscreen, and wear comfortable shoes. The hike is for all ages 11 years and up. We will meet in the boat launch area of the parking lot. Doe Run Lake is located at 1501 Bullock Pen Rd., in Covington, KY 41017.

Then, on Saturday night, come on out for Owl Prowl at Middleton-Mills Park. Ever wonder what predatory birds come out after dark? Join Critters in the Classroom and KCP&R in presenting an interactive program about owls that make NKY their home. Discover some of the mysteries of owls and other nocturnal animals. You are guaranteed to see live owls! The program will begin at 7:30 pm and go until 9 pm. Learn how owls hunt and help maintain a healthy ecosystem. We will also go 'prowling' for owls that may use the park for their hunting grounds. Dress for the weather and a short trail hike. Middleton-Mills Park is located at 3415 Mills Road, in Covington, KY 41015. Follow the signs to Shelterhouse 2.

Pre-registration for these two events is required. Call 859/525-PLAY (7529). For more, visit CincyGreatOutdoorWeekend.org for details on many more free programs all over Northern Kentucky and Greater Cincinnati!

Haunted Halloween Trail

Friday, October 26, and

Saturday,

October 27

It's Halloween and KCP&R is excited to announce the return of the Haunted Halloween Trail and the Great Pumpkin Races. Both events will be held at Middleton-Mills Park, on Mills Road between Taylor Mill and Independence.

The Haunted Halloween Trail is presented by Jude's Custom Exhaust Auto Repair and Towing. The Trail is a quarter-mile of twisting, turning, t-t-t-torch-lit and c-c-c-c-creepy, trail through a deep and dark woods! And, our haunters are, er, eager to entertain "guests!" Ghosts, goblins, witches, and a frightful variety of other Halloween characters, creatures, and displays will inhabit the Trail. Prepare to be scared! We must issue this "grave" warning: Whatever you do, don't wander, don't stray — STAY ON THE TRAIL!

For us to scare the ever-lovin' wits out of you, admission this year will be EITHER a non-perishable food or personal care item donation for Senior Services of Northern Kentucky OR $1 per person to help KCP&R off-set some of the costs involved in presenting the Trail. Snappy Tomato Pizza will be on hand selling pizza slices. In the shelterhouse at the end of the Haunted Trail, survivors may wish to sample complimentary Orange Drool served by Ghostesses. Then take a hayride shuttle back to your vehicles. Everyone in line by 10:30 pm will be able to walk the Trail but the gate at the entrance to the park will be closed at 10:30 pm so we can complete the night of fright before the stroke of midnight. Or else... well, you know! It's gonna be a SCREAM!

Then, on Saturday, it's the Great Pumpkin Races, presented by Dominach's Taekwondo Academy and A-1 Enterprise ~ Signs, Designs, Apparel & More. Hey, if fright is not to your liking, the Great Pumpkin Races are for you! This is great family fun! Maniacal screaming by fans as their pumpkins race down the wooden ramp and across the grass to the finish line? You bet! A panel of judges with stopwatches will oversee the Races and the fastest pumpkins will win prizes. Bring the roundest, 'fastest' pumpkin in the patch to race against other pumpkins in the same weight classes.

It's BYO pumpkin and please — no altered pumpkins, other than painting. Register between 12 and 12:45 pm to compete. Once you are registered, enjoy a visit with the Cincinnati Zoo at noon when Zookeeper Kate Hammer will bring some of the Zoo's most-creepy creatures for a Halloween show-and-tell. Races begin at 1 pm. And, we'll need half a dozen volunteers to help run the Races, too, so call us if you're interested.

Letters To Santa / Letters From Santa!

Beginning on November 5

KCP&R, in cooperation with Kenton County Public Library, is excited to announce its Letters To Santa / Letters From Santa program. As you can imagine, Santa's workshop is really getting busy! Each boy and girl who mails his or her letter to Santa in one of the special Santa Express mailboxes at any Kenton County Public Library will receive a return letter from Santa just in time for Christmas. Santa Express mailboxes will be installed on Monday, November 5. No postage to the North Pole is necessary but please be sure to check your child's letter to see that Santa can easily read full names and home addresses so that each child will receive his or her letter at home. Santa, of course, knows where each child lives but the post office needs complete home addresses. When mailing your child's letter to Santa, please remember to bring non-perishable food or personal care items (including diapers) for Senior Services of Northern Kentucky. Specially decorated barrels will be located right next to the mailboxes at each location. Get into the holiday spirit! Take a few minutes right now and help your child write a letter to Santa and then visit your Kenton County Public Library to mail the letter. Please remember, letters to Santa must be received by Monday, December 3 to give Santa time to read your child's letter and to write a return letter. Don't miss out on the fun of this free seasonal program! Special thanks to Jude's Custom Exhaust, Auto Repair & Towing in Independence for their continued support in helping with the expenses of presenting this program.

One Book One Community

Political intrigue! Murder! This year's One Book One Community selection, Writ of Mandamus by local author Rick Robinson, is a fast-paced political thriller set in Covington. Although the novel focuses on the re-election campaign of fictional Congressman Richard Thompson and his eccentric opponent, there are many twists and turns that involve Keeneland, Ireland, and the smuggling of arms from the Middle East.

Join us in reading Writ of Mandamus, attend related programming throughout September, and meet the author in October.

For a complete list of One Book One Community programs and events throughout Northern Kentucky visit www.nkyonebook.org.

“Here’s a piece of important advice: Don’t sit down to read this book without bringing along at least a sandwich, if not an entire meal. You could starve to death otherwise. Rick Robinson is that compelling.”

Back-to-school resources

Sign up for a free library card today

Don't forget that one of the most important back-to-school tools for students is a library card. They are free for children of any age. Parents will need to bring their student and a valid ID into the Library to fill out an application. It's quick and easy!

Once you have a card, you also have access to valuable online resources that will help your student succeed in school. These include:

- AccessScience
- Amazing Animals of the World
- Inventions and Discoveries
- CultureGrams — a look at countries, their people and places
- Opposing Viewpoints in Context — helps students research, analyze and organize a broad variety of data for conducting research, completing writing assignments, preparing for debates, creating presentations and more.

- Learning Express — practice tests, exercises, skill-building courses for elementary grades through college classes and more
- Mango — online language-learning system

We also offer resources and services to support teachers with curriculum lesson plans or special school events that encourage family literacy.

Additionally, if you have a student who struggles with reading, check out the programs Puppy Tales and Reading Buddies. Puppy Tales, held monthly, builds a child's reading confidence by letting them read to an unbiased audience — a dog! Reading Buddies, held at the Erlanger Branch, pairs readers with a buddy to help boost reading skills. Check the monthly calendar for dates and times. ## Merging Kenton County 911 Dispatch Centers

When I took office in January 2011, my top goal was to merge our three Dispatch Centers into one. Currently, Kenton County, Covington and Erlanger each operate dispatch centers that cost the taxpayers of Kenton County $4.8 million dollars annually for operational costs alone. This figure does not take into consideration capital needs such as a physical operating center, computers, radios, software, and other communication equipment.

For the past year and a half, we have been reviewing data relating to the three centers. We have met with staff of Covington and Erlanger to discuss what exactly it would take to merge the centers into one efficient operation. We all agree the single most important reason for doing this is for the safety of the residents of the County. The second most important factor is the cost savings associated with a merger. The idea of merging the three centers into one is not a new concept. There have been several studies supporting a merger. At least one was done back in the 1990s, and subsequently three others have been done since 2000.

So why hasn't this been accomplished yet? Depending on who you talk with, you will get a variety of opinions. Some say we are too parochial, each jurisdiction believing they have the best system in town and equally the best personnel, "ownership," and "pride in being the best." Some believe the Covington center being a "union" operation, they will not agree to anything except for their best interest. Some believe the last attempt was a "strong arm" power move by the previous County Fiscal Court which caused the cities to walk away. Others say there was inconsistent data being provided that always seemed to be a moving target; and they were unable to agree on anything.

Regardless of one's opinion, the time is right to create a single center. Since our study began, the City of Covington has caused this opportunity to escalate on a fast track when they surprisingly announced they were getting out of the dispatch business earlier this year, effective September 1, 2012. Upon their decision, we "the County" adopted a Resolution indicating we would provide dispatch services for them.

Recognizing the need to bring all 18 cities and the county together is going to take a 100% joint effort. Our first step was to create Ordinance 150.3 establishing an Emergency Services Board consisting of the following:

- Kenton County Police Chief
- Police Chief of Erlanger (upon joining)
- Police Chief of Independence
- Kenton County Emergency Services Director
- Appointee selected by the Mayors Group
- Two Appointees selected by the Kenton County Police Chiefs Assn
- Appointee selected by the Kenton County Fire Chiefs Assn.
- Appointee from Kenton County Fiscal Court (Judge/Executive or Commissioner)

We believe this board structure will satisfy the need for municipalities being served to share in direct control of the operation of the dispatch center.

Public Safety: This is, without a doubt, the main reason for creating a single Dispatch Center. Cell phones are the major cause of the problems we encounter today. Over the years there are numerous documented cases of calls going the wrong way as cell phone usage increases. When using a cell phone to call 911, your call may "hit" the closest tower to your call, which may very well be the wrong dispatch center tower. This will cause you to be contacting the wrong center, and you will need to be transferred to the proper dispatch center. There have been cases of jurisdictions referring you to the wrong dispatch center accidentally which will delay your call even longer. During a crisis situation this is unacceptable. Creating a single dispatch center will eliminate this situation from occurring.

Cost: Today, we spend $4.8 million dollars annually to operate three dispatch centers. The cost for operating a single center will be approximately $4.1 million annually, saving $700,000 per year. Furthermore, approximately every seven years, there are necessary upgrades to each center that today costs about $1 million dollars each. Eliminating two centers will save the taxpayers an additional $2 million dollars. These figures do not include capital needs, which, when multiplied by three, can reduce costs significantly.

Funding Source: Depending on where you live in the County, you are currently paying $2.75, $4 or $4.25 per month on telephone "landlines" plus 70 cents per month for cell phone service, for funding Emergency Dispatch Services. Of the 70 cents collected by the Commonwealth of Kentucky, we receive about 35 cents back; the rest is kept for their collection fees and distribution to other parts of the state at our expense. Unfortunately, because of the decline in landlines, revenue to support 911 dispatch services is decreasing rapidly. There has been a 15% drop in landlines over the past five years alone. As a result, each center must subsidize the cost of their services out of their respective general funds.

After analyzing our single source funding options, hosting a public forum, and conducting a public survey, we believe that the preferred funding source to pay for this much needed operation has been narrowed down to the following two options listed in order of public preference:

1. $6 per month on every electric meter in the county
2. $70-$75 per year on each parcel lot located in the county

When we have adopted this funding mechanism, we will simultaneously REMOVE the current fee charged to your landline telephone. This will also allow for a single dispatch center to be wholly funded without the need for subsidies by any jurisdiction such as we do today. To help jump start this program, I have placed $7 million dollars into a Dispatch Fund. Much of this comes from a successful year at the County level, as we came in $3 million dollars under budget that was projected to be a $2.5 million dollar deficit. I strongly believe, as public servants, it is our duty and responsibility to provide the residents of our county the best level of service possible at the most economical cost of providing that service, in this case, 911 Emergency Dispatch Services.

Animal Shelter News

Animal control

The Kenton County Animal Shelter would like to announce that Animal Control is now providing service to the city of Covington. Animal Control plays a vital role in Kenton County and is here to serve and safeguard the community. The original “Dog Authority,” located in Elsmere consisted of two officers and an old Dodge truck. They have come a long way since that time and are now more educated and better equipped than in years past. Kenton County Fiscal Court employs several officers who have specialized training in large animal tactile rescue, equine, as well as animal cruelty investigation. To contact Animal Control, please call 859/356-3191.

Independence Courthouse turns 100 years old

Come celebrate the history of Kenton County as the Independence Courthouse turns 100 years old in October! The Independence Courthouse Centennial Celebration will take place on Friday, October 12 from 5-8 pm and Saturday, October 13 from 9 am-5 pm. The event is free to the public and will feature ongoing tours of the historic Courthouse, including the seldom seen second floor, along with local history exhibits. Additional events will include craft vendors, the Independence Farmers' Market, a veterans' presentation, antique cars, musical entertainment and more! A free shuttle bus and parking will be provided. The event is sponsored by the Kenton County Fiscal Court, Kenton County Clerk, Kenton Circuit Clerk, Kenton County Sheriff, City of Independence and Independence Business Association.

Seeking participants

As we finalize the details of this historical event, we are looking to honor all Kenton County residents that are at least 100 years of age this year. If you are, or if you know of someone who is 100 years of age or older, please contact the Kenton County Parks & Recreation at 859/525-7259 or by email at mary.voorhees@kentoncounty.org. In addition, it's not too late to sign up to be a craft vendor or musical performer at the event. The Centennial Committee is still accepting vendors for a nominal charge of only $15. In addition, they are looking for musical acts from the bluegrass/folk genres, as well as church, school and choir groups. Please contact the Kenton County Parks & Recreation at 859/525-7529 for more information.

Courthouse Timeline

- Incorporated in 1842, the small community surrounding the new courthouse named itself Independence to commemorate the independence of Kenton County from Campbell County.
- In late 1911, the old Courthouse (pictured at left) was torn down, and the present Courthouse was constructed. Dedication ceremonies were held on October 21, 1912. The crowd of about 4000 was invited to join in a feast of barbeque and burgoo. The dedication was organized by Fiscal Court Judge Walter Cleary.
- In the Kentucky Post that day, it describes the building in two parts: "The main structure is two stories high, surmounted with a tower that can be seen for miles before one gets to Independence. The main part of the building is of colonial style, and contains two courtrooms, each 32 x 43 feet, as well as rooms for both the County and Circuit Judges, record rooms and other necessary offices." It was built at a cost of $35,000.
- The portico on the Courthouse proclaims, KENTON COVNTY COVRT HOVSE, using the Roman script for the letter U. The Courthouse remains the iconic face of the city of Independence.
- A fire which occurred around midnight at Watson's Saloon on Thursday, May 10, 1917 threatened to include the Courthouse. High winds carried flames from the saloon and jeopardized the County Seat, which was located across the street. A bucket brigade formed from volunteers and saved the Courthouse and surrounding residences.
- Many important political events took place at the Independence Courthouse, and there were some who received their first nominations for public office here.
- Local farmers and their wives would buy and sell their produce at the Courthouse.
- The Courthouse was expanded in 1990 to accommodate the growth of the southern part of the County. Offices, additional record room, and parking spaces were added.
- To commemorate Kenton County's 150th birthday in 1990, a 15-foot Aristocrat pear tree was planted on the Courthouse lawn. The tree was designated as the County's official tree. The original Aristocrat Pear tree was actually conceived and bred by Independence resident and long time Kenton County cooperative extension agent William Straw, who lived behind the Courthouse on McCullum Pike. The tree replanted on the lawn is the original discovery tree.
- The Independence Courthouse continues to hold Kenton County Fiscal Court meetings monthly, maintain offices of the Kenton County Clerk, Kenton County Circuit Court Clerk and Kenton County Sheriff, as well as host the Independence Farmers' Market every Saturday from late April through October.

PUBLIC SAFETY UPDATES

Chief of Police appointed

At its May 8 meeting, the Kenton County Fiscal Court voted unanimously to appoint R. Brian Capps Chief of the Kenton County Police Department. Chief Capps served as Interim Chief of Police since January 1, 2012. During his tenure as Interim Chief, Capps oversaw the Kenton County Police Department's response to the tornado that struck southern Kenton County. Chief Capps began his law enforcement career in 1990 as a military police officer. In 1996 he joined the Cold Spring Kentucky Police Department as a patrol officer. In 1998, Chief Capps started with the Kenton County Police Department. He has since served as a patrol officer, detective, field training officer, member of the honor guard, sergeant, and captain. In 2010, Chief Capps attended the F.B.I.'s National Academy, a premier law enforcement leadership academy. Chief Capps is the 12th chief of the Kenton County Police Department.

Kenton County Police Department turns 90

Officially formed on June 15, 1922, the Kenton County Police Department recently celebrated its 90th birthday. Over the Department's long history, it has evolved from the three-officer Dixie Highway Speed Cops to the 31-officer Kenton County Police Department. While officers with the Department still do catch speeders, the Department has also expanded to include among its services, investigation of major crimes, evidence collection assistance, serious traffic accident reconstruction, computer forensics, and undercover narcotics investigations.

Back-to-school Internet safety

There is no doubt that the Internet provides nearly unlimited resources for children to learn and grow, but it is equally certain that many dangers still exist for children and young adults on the Internet. Unrestricted Internet in your home is, in many ways, worse than leaving the doors of your house unlocked with a sign in your front yard welcoming strangers. For a number of years, officers from the Kenton County Police Department have been investigating Internet crime as members of the national Internet Crimes Against Children task force. Our officers have arrested numerous people in our area for trading child pornography and attempting to entice young children over the Internet.

A recent study of middle-school students produced some concerning statistics. Around 15% of the students reported talking online with someone they know only from the Internet. The higher the grade level of the student the more likely they were to speak with a stranger. Many of these students reported receiving traditional mail from the stranger along with gifts ranging from gift cards to event tickets to bus tickets. More than half of the students who were talking to a stranger online reported meeting the stranger in person and a majority of them were not nervous about doing so. Alarming, 10% of the middle-school students who reported an in-person meeting with a stranger they met online reported that the meeting resulted in a sexual assault or inappropriate touching.

The good news for parents is there are some steps you can take to protect your children. One of the first things to do is to speak with your children about safe use of technology. Each year, we partner with local schools to deliver Internet safety presentations, but it is important that the conversation with our children not start or stop there. Resources are available on the Internet to assist parents with these talks because, let's face it, technology is ever-changing and it is often the youngest among us who know it best. Parents are usually playing catch-up when it comes to knowing what the latest trends are among children on the Internet. One good source of information is the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children's NetSmartz.org website.

Other quick steps for parents include keeping computers in shared spaces in your home, treating cell phones and smart phones the same as computers, installing and monitoring parental controls, and reporting suspicious activity to law enforcement promptly. Be sure to Like the Kenton County Police Department on Facebook (www.facebook.com/KentonCountyPolice) and look for more back-to-school Internet safety tips there during August and September.

Special thanks to Dr. Elizabeth Burgess Dowdell, Associate Professor at Villanova University College of Nursing, for providing statistics relating to her study of middle-school students.

Northern Kentucky Health Department

Message from Dr. Saddler: Vaccination, prevention urged as whooping cough cases rise

Dr. Lynne
Saddler

As parents, we ache for our children when they are sick. Whooping cough, or pertussis, can be especially scary. A child who is infected with it coughs violently and rapidly, over and over, until finally the air is gone from the lungs. Then, she is forced to inhale, causing a loud "whooping" sound that gives the disease its nickname, whooping cough. It can also cause vomiting, breathing problems, pneumonia and seizures.

Northern Kentucky has seen a higher than usual number of cases this year — more than 70, compared to a typical 25. Here's what you can do:

- Get vaccinated. Adults can get a Tdap booster for just $4 at the Health Department. Kids get vaccinated as part of routine childhood immunizations — including a booster prior to sixth grade.
- If you have a cough lasting longer than two weeks, contact your health care provider. It may be whooping cough.
- If you have a cough of any kind, avoid contact with small infants.

Medical Reserve Corps seeks volunteers

The Medical Reserve Corps provides a volunteer pool that can enhance and support public health agencies and the health care infrastructure during a crisis.

Since 2002, the program has grown to more than 200,000 volunteers in nearly 1,000 units across the country. Northern Kentucky's Medical Reserve Corps unit has 421 members, including 164 Kenton County residents.

Local Medical Reserve Corps volunteers have participated in a variety of disaster drills and provided support to the Health Department during the 2009-2010 H1N1 swine flu vaccination clinics.

Citizens 18 and older with either medical or non-medical backgrounds are needed. The next orientation session is from 6 to 8 pm on Thursday, October 18, at the Health Department's District Office in Edgewood. For more information, contact Jean Caudill at 859/363.2009, Jean.Caudill@nkyhealth.org or visit www.nkyhealth.org/mrc.
